HO WARD'S PLOUGHS.—JAMES and FREDERICK HOWARD, Britannia Iron Works,
Bedford, England, have received from the Royal Agricultural Society of England more first prises for ploughs, harrows, and horse rakes, than any other maker.
Their champion ploughs are now made almost entirely of wrought fron. In this, as well as other respects, they are therefore thoroughly adapted for colonial purposes, and see constructed so as to require but little space in packing.
Many thousands of their implements are exported every year to all parts of the world; the requirements of the different colonics are consequently well understood.

JAMES and FREDERICK HOWARD are not ealy the largest manufacturers in the world, of ploughs, but also of hom harrows, horse rakes, and steam ploughs or cultivators.

The above goods have been carefully selected and purchased for A. COLLINS by experienced agents in England for cash, and as he will continue to receive extensive shipments he is received, in order to reduce their present large stock of clothing, to meet the present depressed state of trade, to sell at a small advance on cost price. Storesheppers buying at the Oriental Hall, you will find a great advantage in so doing.

TO FAMILIES and the PUBLIC GENERALLY.—
IMPORTANT SALE OF BOOTS AND SHOES.
—To commence at 10 of clock on TUESDAY MORNING, 7th instant, at BENJAMIN COCKS (aste Cooks and Hunt), 269, George-street. The dissolution of the firm of Cocks and Hunt has induced the present proprietor to effor the public a stock of boots and shoes, for cash, to the value of EANY THOUSAND POUNDS, at such prices as will enable him to clear off at once the greater portion of the stock on hand, previous to receiving shipments of choice goods from Homan and Co., and other houses. The reputation which the late firm of Cocks and Hunt has obtained, and the unwillingness it has exhibited at anything like puffing, will, it is hoped, impress the public with the genuineness of this great sale of boots and shoes.

Commencing on TUESDAY MORNING, 27th instant,

SATURDAY, AUGUST 24, 1861.

Is we pay unusual attention to the strike at Newcastle, it is because of the magnitude of the interests involved, the great importance of reconciling those interests, and preventing the demoralisation and distress which must always result from the quarrels between capital and labour. If we could imagine that the and labour. If we could imagine that the miners would devote themselves to new forms of industry, or that they would open rival pits, and thus enlarge the basis of their employment. and thus enlarge the basis of their employment, the question would assume a new phase; but a strike of long continuance, envenomed by suffering and resentment, leaves deep scars in the country where it happens. For instance, the mines of Newcastle and its neighbourhood supply .350,000 tons of coal annually, and the expenditure in wages is not less than £150,000. The miners—stated to be 900—must represent some 5000 persons. Our correspondent cave a brief description of the 900—must represent some 5000 persons. Our correspondent gave a brief description of the immediate consequences. Many a home is unhappy, various dependent forms of employment are stopped, and by a very rapid process the evil reaches the shopkeeper, the houseowner and the merchant. Nor can we reckon as among the lighter evils the long idleness of strikes, which induces men of weak principles to frequent the taproom, and spend the scanty relicts of their means in cambling and drink.

to frequent the taproom, and spend the scanty relicts of their means in gambling and drink.

Is it not possible to accomplish a reconcili-ation? Should not the workman, if the first to provoke the difficulty, tender concessions? This, of course, will depend upon the origin of the quarrel and the manner in which it has the quarrel and the manner in which it has been prosecuted.

We have learned some circumstances respecting the strike which we do not think are likely to be contradicted, and they seem to us to demand that the miners should discard the bad advice under which they have acted, and to which they owe probably the proposed reduction of their wages and the general disturbance of those interests upon which their employment and prosperity depend. A reduction of twenty and prosperity depend. A reduction of twenty per cent. is no doubt heavy, and was likely to encounter resistance. We have, however, been of £5 per ton, as we have known it to be within informed that the reduction is inevitable if the last ten years, and it may be long before only four feet eight inches and a half. But this If it were resolved that no stage-coach should carry more than one passenger, the proprietor must either give very small wages to his coachman or go off the road. If the miners determine that the capital expended on railways and plant shall only be valuable to a limited extent, their share, on the division of the produce, must also be decreased. Coal is not an article which, like the spices of the Dutch, can be dealt with like the spices of the Dutch, can be dealt with as an absolute monopoly.

The first ground of quarrel between the Miners' Association and the A. A. Company, it seems, is the restriction imposed upon the earnings of the miners. Until within the last few months any man of skill, industry, and strength, could make what he thought proper, and some earned twenty-five shillings per day. These wages, of course, were not made by men who dislike work or are unwilling to make extraordinary exertions. A meeting of miners reordinary exertions. A meeting of miners re-solved that no man should be allowed to earn more than 11s. 4d. per day, whatever might be his ability, because in their opinion he would overtask his strength! In other words, he would produce more coal in proportion than his less skilful neighbours. Thus often the "coalgetter" entered the pit at six o'clock, and left it at half-past ten,—four hours and a half. This principle has been tried in various trades.

The object seems to be to reduce to a low level all the superiorities of every calling, and thus to discourage everything like vigour, improvement, and industry, and to deprive men of the oppor-tunity of doing better than suit the habits of Another scheme, however, was necessary to secure the success of this restriction, namely, to prevent the company accumulating a stock. In former times there was rarely any provision for a sudden demand, but so long as coal-getting was unrestricted, the arrival of a vessel sent the was unrestricted, the arrival of a vessel sent the miners into the pits, and they made up by temporary vigour for any loss of time which might have occurred. By the late restrictions on earnings, however, no such indemnity is afforded them. To keep down a stock by which provision is made up for contingencies is the constant policy of the miners, and the limit they have imposed deprives the more industrious of any advantage from a temporary but imperious demand at the port.

It seems that matters were brought to a crisis by the acceptance of a tender for the performance of a work, namely, the driving a performance of a work, namely, the driving a shaft to connect one pit with another. This work, which it was important to the company to effect, would bring into operation their powerful engine, and release a considerable number of hands employed at pumps. A tend rows accepted from a miner named Joseph Holmes, against whose character no imputation could be brought. The work was isolated from the rest of the operations. The delegates of the Union, however, issued their order to the hands to strike unless this conference of the transport of the strike unless this conference of the strike unless this order to the hands to strike unless this contract were given up by the company. The contractor, rather than place himself in hostility contractor, rather than place himself in hostility to the other miners in these unpleasant, per-haps dangerous circumstances, renounced his contract. This, however, was not sufficient for the association; he was discharged on their

the association; he was discharged on their demand as coal-getter; and in their usual dictatorial strain they required the company to undertake in scriing that the man should never be employed in coal-getting, and that if ever so employed, that the miners should be at liberty to strike on the instant without notice!

This violent attempt to coerce and oppress exhausted the patience of the A. A. Company, and a meeting of the coal owners, who had up to this time acted without concert, led to that reduction of wages which had been already deemed necessary to balance the restriction on production, and thus of the value of all capital invested in the coal-fields.

No one disputes the right of the miners to

No one disputes the right of the miners to take whatever course they please in disposing of their labour, but can it be supposed that any company will submit to this kind of government, or that they will deem any property worth having which entails the endurance of this insult and subjection? These arbitrary attempts to prevent men earning as much as they can, and which stand between the employer and the employed, must be resisted, and will assuredly fail.

Since the issue of the notice of this reducsince the issue of the notice of this reduction, the miners' committee of management prohibited the workmen from earning more than 5s. 8d., the object being still—scarcity. Thus, on the eve of the strike, the miners—probably the majority of whom hate these tyrannical combinations, have been reduced to that low scale of regress which is now set forth as scale of wages which is now set forth as a grievance to the world.

It may perhaps be inferred that the owners of coal mines have acted with rashness and indifference to their workmen, but so far from this being the case a large sum of money has been expended by the Australian Agricutural Company to facilitate their earnings, and to promote their comfort. These additions for this purpose have, during this year, entailed an outlay of capital to the amount of £800 and an increased expenditure of £1140 per annum. So clearly is it the interest of these companies to give reasonable satisfaction to the men they employ, and so much have they been in the power of their workmen that all pretences of oppression and tyranny on their part are wholly oppression and tyrangy on their part are wholly

It would, of course, be more easy for us and perhaps more popular, to denounce the greed of capitalists, and to set forth the more numerous interest as the only party oppressed, but we are now at the antipodes, and although in former times the antipodes, and although in former times capital had great advantages over labour the conditions are now reversed. We have to suffer that process of correction which is always painful where deeply-rooted prejudices have been implanted. In some circumstances labour has been the party oppressed. In this country it avenges not its present but its past suffering by attempting industrial laws which are inconsistent with progress and the general state of the world.

We repeat that the coal interest of this country must be considered as including a foreign trade. We have already dispatched our coals to China, Batavia, India, California, and South America. But this is a mere fragment of the probable demand, as the mining interest becomes stable and reliable. Clearly it is impossible for our miners to establish their prosperity upon scarcity. This is their fatal delusion. It is one against which every coal consumer in the country is in necessary opposition. It is a premium offered to the importation of coals from Great Britain. It is only a little while ago a notice was received from the P. and O. Company relative to the use of the colonial coast from King George's Sound to Sydney. But the mail which has just left will convey intimation of our strike, and of the consequent uncertainty of the market. The P. and sequent uncertainty of the market. The P. and O. Company will not be inclined to risk a price the last ten years, and it may be long before the project for depending upon the local market will be again entertained.

Our readers will then see that the difference Our readers will then see that the difference between the miners' association and the coal owners may be thus stated. The object of the miners' association is to reduce the quan-tity of coal produced; the object of the com-panies is to produce as large a quantity as possible. The plan of the miners' asso-ciation is to prevent workmen from earning more than a low minimum; the notion of the coal owners is that assessment. the coal owners is that every man should earn according to his industry and ability. The scheme of the miners' association prohibits The scheme of the miners' association prohibits all freedom of action as between the employer and the employed—excluding men from the works, forcing their dismissal, and breaking up tenders; the notion of the coal owners as that they should judge whom they are to employ, and upon what terms. The miners' association prohibits all tenders as an indirect method of gaining to laberium and measurements. method of gaining to laborious and persevering workmen superior pay, and they have added to this another condition that a work of a special nature, shall not only not be contracted for by way of tender, but that it shall not be taken or let except at a rate of wages fixed by the contract. way of tender, but that it shall not be taken or let except at a rate of wages fixed by their interference and subject to their approval. Is it possible for a great interest to submit to this coercion? We state these facts with the strongest confidence in their truth. But we put it to both the coal owners and the miners, whether it is worth while to these warmants. whether it is worth while to throw away hun-dreds and thousands of pounds, and to involve the whole mining community in a wasting and most demoralising conflict—a conflict which will by imbittered by every hour of its continu-

Looking to all the circumstances of the case, we should strongly advise that the miners abandon their schemes of restriction on quan-tity, which are directly in the teeth of political conomy, and that the coal owners being thus enabled to increase their production and the profit upon their investment should meet the miners to some extent in reference to prices. If it be true that the coal owners have been obliged to reduce their terms of sale, they are entitled to some consideration in the more than the coal owners. their terms of saie, they are entitled to some consideration in the wages they pay; however this may be, it is foolish obstinacy for two parties who are interested in each other's prosperity to set themselves in lasting antagonism. To subset themselves in lasting antagonism. To sub-mit to the coercion of the Union in the form in which it has been exercised is, of course, what no man of spirit would think of for a moment but there may be a path of reconciliation still open, notwithstanding that soon all such paths must be inevitably closed.

Among the Parliamentary papers recently pub-lished in South Australia, is one giving an offi-cial estimate of the cost of construction of a short horse-power railway in extension of the existing line. There has been for some years a short line in existence connecting the River Murray with Port Elliot; but the dangers of that port have induced an extension of the that port have induced an extension of the line to the somewhat safer anchorage of Victor Harbour, about five miles further along the coast. Everything relating to the question of internal communication is just now of such pressing importance to this colony that light from any quarter which will contribute at all towards a practical solution of the difficulty is welcome. The price of labour is a shade lower in South Australia than it is here, and the price of materials probably about the same. The cost of the work in one colony, therefore, would be very nearly the same as in the other, and the calculations with elightmodification would hold good for either.

Amateur estimates by irresponsible and often anenymous newspaper correspondents, we have had in abundance, but it would be unsafe to build any theory upon them. The late Governor-General's estimate of three thousand pounds a mile, though adopted by the Ministry.

Governor-General's estimate of three thousand pounds a mile, though adopted by the Ministry, was also one of those vague theoretical calculations that have very little practical value.

Mr. Hanson, the Engineer-in-chief of the South Australian railways, has recently completed the northern line of railway in that colony, and his calculations are probably based on work of a similar character recently executed, and may be presumed, therefore, to be tolerably accurate and reliable. His report and estimate of the probable coat is as follows:—

Engineer and Architect's Office Adelaids.

of the probable cost is as follows:—

Engineer and Architect's Office, Adelaide, 11th June, 1861.

Sir,—I have the honour to forward herewith, for the information of the Honourable Commissioner of Public Works, the accompanying estimate for an extension of the present Port Elliot and Goolwa Tramway to Vietor Harbour, including a jetty at Police Point.

In making up the estimate, I have kept the work to be done down to the lowest point consistent with efficiency. For instance, I propose to use a rail of 35lbs. only, instead of 40lbs. as on the present line; to fasten the rails with brabs without chairs; and to make the width, at formation lavel, 18ft. instead of 20ft. as now.

The quantity of sarthwork (acarly 900 cubic yards per mile) is large for a tramway, but is unavoidable from the mile) is large for a transway, but is unavoidable from the nature of the country; while the intervention, in as short a length, of a bridge over the Hindmarsh River, and over a deep creek, and the necessity of a jetty at one end, make the cost per mile appear very high.

The fact also, that the land through which the extension is taken is sold, obliges us not only to buy the same; but in order to prevent fracques, to fence the line.

Hind I been laying out a separate transway in an isolated country, I should have adopted a 3 feet 6 inch gauge in-stend of a 6 feet 3 inch; but, as this is only an extension of an existing work, I am obliged to carry out the existing gauge.

A transway of 3 feet 6 inch gauge would have been cheeper than one of a 5 feet 3 inch gauge.

I have, &c.,
W. Hanson.

W. S. M. Hutton, Beq.

12,207 0 0 7,720 0 0

19,927 0 0 £21,920 0 0 Deducting the cost of the jetty, the cost per mile would be about three thousand eight hundred and fifty pounds. Those who are more conversant than we are with the prices of labour and materials will be able to say how far these figures would hold good for a contract in this colony. Supposing them to stand, we should be at liberty to make a reduction in con-

would be more than counterbalanced by the ne cessity for more culverts and more expe bridges. The recent floods have shown the necessity for allowing ample waterway beneath necessity for allowing ample waterway beneath the level of the rails, and it is abundantly clear that any attempt to save money in the first outlay by insufficient culverts or un-substantial bridges would be a very false economy. The cheapest form of railway we can possibly adopt must have its bridges high enough to be above the flood level, and strong enough to resist the flood pressure. And where the watercourses rise as high and rapidly as they do in this colony, this necessity implies a considerable outlay in respect of railway bridges. The lower terms therefore in the conconsiderable outlay in respect of railway bridges. The lowest sum, therefore, at which we can safely put down the cost of a horse-power railway would probably be four thousand

Judging from our experience of locomotive railways, and from the surveys that have been made, and making reasonable deductions for the reduced cost of labour, it seems pretty clear that moderately good lines to the north and south would cost about sixteen thousand pounds out it the west somewhat more south would cost about sixteen inousand pounds a mile, and one to the west somewhat more. We shall probably not be far off the mark in taking these figures as representing respectively the first cost of the systems of railroad. It is possible, of course, to construct an intermediate style of road, something better than the cheap one, and not so good as the dear. But experience generally is not in favour of adopting hybrid systems, which are too often found to possess the fault of each of the extremes they avoid without the virtues of either. It is best to adopt decisively one system or the other—either to put up with a cheap and avowedly temporary sivile of work or to and avowedly temporary style of work, or to go in at once for a permanent undertaking. Supposing, therefore, a locomotive railway to be considered four times as expensive in the

be considered four times as expensive in the first instance as a horse-power railway, the comparative suitability of the two to our present to denead upon the circumstances would seem to depend upon mobalance of such considerations as these:—the ability to borrow money, the ability to pay the interest on the loan, the prospective amount of remunerative traffic, the relative cost of working, the capacity of the cheaper style to meet present wants, the length of time before it would need to be superseded, the probability of its repaying its cost before a reconstruction became indispensable, the probability of constructing the permanent works more cheaply by delaying them for a few years, the relative cost of repairs, the relative convenience afforded to the public, the relative rate at which they can be constructed, and the relative extent to which accommodation can be diffused over the whole country by the two systems. All these considerations, and perhaps some others, must be taken into account and weighed together. It will not do to look at one or two and neglect the others.
The question is a wide one, and embraces many points; and though it is very easy to give positive opinions, those who have most thoroughly examined the question in all its aspects will be the least likely to be dogmatic.

Our neighbours in Victoria have committed themselves to the system of a thoroughly substantial but very expensive railroad. But the annual burden of the debt is already being felt as rather oppressive, while the repayment of the principal has not even been contemplated. At the same time, the capacity of the lines to ac-commodate all traffic within their grasp is com-plete, and we shall become more sensible of that fact two years hence, when the completion of their Northern line to Echuca will enable them to drain the whole trade of our western interior to an extent beyond what is now the case, and that will defy the competition not only of our present roads, but even of our projected tram-roads. With respect to that part of our terri-tory, we seem to have the alternative of either losing its trade or of going to a great expense to try and retain it.

Thursday, 10 a.m.

THE Inspector-General of Police, Captain M'Larie, Colonal Kempt, and the Adjutant of the 12th Regiment, leave to-day for Sydney. The universal satisfaction in which they have discharged their various duties, the gentlemanly yet at the same time framess of their proceedings, the kindness expressed, the information and advice they have at all times been so ready to accord to one and all, deserve the thanks of the community at large. That their presence on the field was necessary no one can doubt. Great as the regret is at their leaving, it is to be be hoped that similar proceedings will now a cocur either here, or on Thursday, 10 a.m. Great as the regret is at their leaving, it is to be be hoped that similar proceedings will never occur either here, or on any gold-field, to warrant the Government sending these officers up on such an unthankful yet necessary expedition.

LOWER MURRUMBIDGES.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

Avoir of 10.—shipping News.—On the lat instant, the Albury, steamer, Captain Barber, accompanied by two barges, passed up. she brings about 390 tone of cargo, of which 100 are consignments by Cadedi, and the remainder, consisting of 80 tons flour, 13 tons sugar, 10 tons ten, 30 tons olimen's stores, &c., and 33 tons expected merchandise, are goods shipped by Brown and Co., of Adelaide, and are for sale. On the 10th instant, the Rogan, Captain Bower, also passed up, apparently she had no cargo, as her paddle wheels were very high out of the water. The Murrum-ton average height. It is said that there is another rise at Waggs Waggs, but it is not thought that it will be sufficient to reflood the country. The want of a bridge at Hay is much felt during the continuance of these periodical floods, and the necessity of having a vote of money for such an undertaking ought to be continually represented to the Governmen, who, no doubt, will be analous to get these districts into a creditable condition before they hand them over to the Governmen, who, no doubt, will be analous to get these districts into a creditable condition before they hand them over to the Governmen, who, no doubt, will be analous to get these districts into a creditable condition before they hand then over to the Covernment of Central Australia.

As Extransa Expansion—A Mr. Rivey, a well-known and travelling by compass for Mennindie, reached the Darling in fourteen days, and found that Mennindie on all the published maps has been placed fifty miles too high up the river. The plains between the two rivers are described as being very fertile at this time of the year, but it seems doubtful if there is any permanent water far back during the summer, except small quantities processive in wells. No difficulties were encountered during took page horses and very light tooks, just sufficient rations to carry them seroes.

BANK RETURNS—THEIR LIABILITIES WITHIN THE COLLNY,

To the Editor of the Herald.

Srs.—It is gratifying to observe, in your late publication of Bank returns, that a step has been taken in the right direction by most of the colonial banks in reducing the amount of deposits, so much the cause of over-training. of the colonial banks in reducing the amount of unpossess.

ACCLIMATISATION OF THE TUI, OR PARSON BIRD.

To the Editor of the Herald.

Sin,—Seeing a lettr in this day's issue, headed as above, and signed Robert Thomson. I feel a pleasure in giving any information that lies in my power on the subject, having had many of them while in New Zealand, and one in particular I had for upwards of five and the subject, and one in particular in had for upwards of five and feel with long time for one to live even in its own climate, and fresh bread, relied in small pile, subject, the confirmation of the subject in the proper. The only cure for the epideptic fit, but its common cold both while in the fit, vin., to insmerse it once (quickly), and if not better dip the limbs again in water, but not the head, and then allow it to rest on the hand until it shakes itself; afterwards give it some of the above mentioned pile and sugar, and last, but not least, cleanliness must be observable wherever it may be kept.

COLONIAL WINE.

To the Estimate of the Herald.

Six,—The increasing consumption of colonial wine within the last twelve months, which the enterprise of two or three prentismen, in bringing it forward in a merchantable shape, has natiserably influenced, will, it is to be hoped, induce the Government to amend the law, which interferes with its more general consumption. At present colonial wine cannot be obtained in iese quantities than two gallons, as the Act restricts its aste in small two gallons, as the Act restricts its aste in small propounds annually, are of a publican's general license of thirty than two gallons, as the Act restricts its as more probable part of their business. In the sale of spirits is a more probable part of their business in constituting the propounds annually; and under Mr. Chadrone's Budget, any person can take out a license to retail wincs, in any quantity, however, amall, upon payment of three

All that parcel of land, containing by admeasurement ONE THOUSAND ACRES, situate on COCKLE CREEK, BRISBANE WATER, being well known as J. B. Richards' grant.

33 This extensive block of land has a large frontage to Cockle Bay, and adjoins Spears' 60-acre, Campbell's 300-acre, and Humphrey's 100-acre grants. It was an early selection by Mr. Richards, prior to any land being taken up in the neighbourhood, and consequently, having a thorough knewledge of the country, he selected the finest land in the locality. It is well watered, and from its proximity to Sydney, and convenience of communication, it is well adapted for subdivision into small farms, for which there is good demand in the immediate neighbourhood.

The IMPROVEMENTS comprise yards, huts, &c.
With Coglidrie will be sold 700 HEAD of CATTLE, more or less a mixed herd.
The cattle on these stations are well known to be quiet and well-bred, having been rearred from the noted stocks of Meesrs. Lawson, Rodd, Lee, Christy, and Westworth. They have always became a high character, and are second to none in the district.

They have always borne a high character, and are second to none in the district.

LOT 4.—THE SPRINGS AND CHAIN PONDS
Stations, situate about 17 miles from Dubbo, and about 26 miles from Wellington, adjoining the late Mr. Hyeronimus' Geonoo station, and Measrs.

Cruickabank's Little River stations.

THE SPRINGS contains an area of about 20,000 acres, with a frontage of about 7 miles to Little Biver, extending to Paddy's River, consisting of well watered and thickly grassed country, suited for either cuttle or sheep.

THE IMPROVEMENTS consist of the homestead, a capital dwelling-house of ten rooms, wood lined and oil painted throughout, back and front verandaba, kitches, store and collar, a garden, orchard and vineyard, of about 14 acre, a cultivation paddock of about 70 acres, a grass paddock of about 150 acres; intechyral, of about 14 acre, a cultivation paddock of about 70 acres, a grass paddock of about 150 acres; intechyral with swing-gates; hay shed, 60 x 14; men's huts, &c.

CHAIN PONDS is a square mile block of fine well-spring country, about 9 miles from THE SPRINGS.

With these stations will be sold 800 HEAD OF CAT-TIE.

TLE, more or less; a choice, mixed, well-bred, quie herd.

These unrivalled pastoral properties will be sold in tota to stit purchasers. They are familiar to those who are acquainted with the district as the stations of Messra. Donald and Baird, and are now only sold in consequence of the late dissolution of partnership.

The situation could not be better, as it commands the southern markets as well as those of Bydney and the Western Goldfields.

The runs are well watered and of a fattening nature, with valuable improvements, and equally adapted for sheep as cattle. The stock are as well but hose as any in the district.

The properties, whether as a whole or in separate lots, may be ranked as really desirable, conveniently situated, and superior

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, early in October next,
The above choice and compact pastoral property.
TOGOLO occupies a large area of well grassed country, and is abundantly supplied with water, which has never been known to fail in the driest season. Its grasting capabilities are very large—fully equal to about 1500 head of cattle—and, from the natural features of the country, it possesses the advantage of being equally good as a winter run as in summer.

The improvements comprise a capital dwelling-house, containing six rooms, with large garden well stocked with fruit trees, and securely enclosed by a substantial four-rail feato; three cultivation paddocks, stockyard, milking yard, stockmen's laut, bears, pigaties. There are also two additional stockyards out on the run, for the convenience of working the stock.

The stock comprises about

One third of the purhase price to be paid down, in each, into the hands of the Auctioneer, upon the fall of the hammer; the remainder in three equal payments, at one, two, and three years' date from day of esle, by approved promiseory notes, with eight per cent. per annum interest added, and security by mortgage upon the stock and stations.

M. THOMAS CADELL has received instructions from the proprietor, Duncan F. Mackay, Esq., Moonic River, to sell by suction, at the Northumberland Hotel, West Maitland, on THURSDAT, 19th September, at 12 o'clock,
All those well-known, excellent, fattening stations, Gooraramin, East and West, with Ballingarry, or Ninghan, situate on the Moonic River, in the colony of Queensland, having a frontage to the west side of the Moonic of ten miles, and a frontage of about eleven miles to the east side of the same river, and extending back about twenty-five miles on each side of the river, thus forming an almost unlimited back country, capable of depasturing in all seemons 9000 head of cattle, or upwards of 30,000 sheep.

hoad of cattle, or upwards of 30,000 sheep.

The country consists principally of level sait bush forests and plains, thickly grassed, with herbage of excellent attending quality. These stations are permanently watered, and the supply has never been known to fail, even in the driest seasons. The beck country is also watered by holes, most of which, at a trifling outlay, could be made to hold a permanent supply, which would allow this portion of the run to be fully stocked with sheep, for which it is peculiarly adapted. The above stations adjoin Indiguily on the north, well knewn as the property of Otto Bakdwin, Esq.; and Bullamil and Mr. Bowman's Guningdie on the south.

The improvements comprise two good station huts, and several yards on various portions of the runs. The main yards at the head station are very complete, and are capable of working 4000 head of cattle.

With the above splendid Runs will be sold, 6000 head (more or less) of quiet cattle, principally aged from two to five years, and among which are a number of payed cown; which cattle will be mustered and delivered to the parchaser. If stock howes, and stores, given in.

The shove splendid stations and stock are to the market for bona fide sale. And will be submitted to public competition in consequence of the proprietor intending to remove to the Burdackin, where he is forming extensive sheep stations.

The proprietor has resided upon these runs for years, and consequently the hord has been always hopt well worked; and it may be safely asserted, that the cattle new offered for sale are fully equal to any hord in the Northern Districts. The aplendid drafts of he cattle often seem in this market will give an idea of the quality of the country and cattle.

offered for sale are fully equal to any herd in the Northern Districts. The splendid drafts of fat cattle chast seen in this market will give an idea of the quality of the country and cattle.

All the rough cattle have been lately cleared off, and sold for boiling purposes; while any older cattle of an inferior description have been sent to the Victorian market, and a good proportion of old cows spayed.

There are a large to of quiet miking cattle, the pregenty of which are principally from well-bred bulls, from the A. Company's, and Measurs. Regnolds', Loder's, and Baldwin's hards—a large number of which have been placed upon the stations during the last few years.

As some guarantee that the herd has been well attended to—weather permitting, nearly the whole of the herd can be mustered and delivered in a month.

There are about 500 head of very superior haifers upon the station, for a large number of which the proprietor has retuned 64 per head.

The auctioneer begs to call the especial attention of capitalists and others in this and the self-seems colonies to the above stations, and feels satisfied that an accossity exists for anying anything farther than that the above properties are for positive sale, and that intending purchaseers are particularly requested to visit the runs, and the proprietor upon the stations will point out the boundaries, and give the hilbest information.

The auctioneer is perfectly satisfied that if the runs are impacted they will be found in no way inferior to the feregoing description.

The auctioneer is perfectly satisfied that further perfectly and the further perfectly the perfectly and the the further perfectly the perfectly and the further perf going description.

The auctioneer will be happy to furnish further particulars, upon application being made to his address, West Maitland.

M. F. VINDIN has been favoured with instructions from Mr. Tindail to sell by public auction, at an early date, of which due notice will be given, if not previously disposed of.

All that allotment of land, having a frontage of 50 feet to Prince-street, upon which are sected two well-built weatherboard cottages, together with well of water and other conveniences, at present in the occupation of Mr. Otto Zuergens, baker, and Mr. Crighton, bootmaker.

The above will be found one of the most valuable properties in this rapidly improving town. Grafton being the only outlet to a vast extent of mineral country, must in a short time become a town of considerable importance, and those who may now be induced to invest in freshold property here cannot fail to realise a very handsome profit.

Terms, exceedingly liberal.
